Collaborative search/information seeking involves the same activities [as individual] plus:

- communicating about the information need
- sharing the retrieved information
- coordinating the constituent information retrieval activities across multiple participants.

(Poltrack et al., 2003, p.239)

- How does collaboration influence information seeking strategies, processes, behaviors?
- How can systems support (and be aware of) structures in a collaborative search process?
- How can previous searchers' activities and results be made useful for other searchers?
